A condominium is defined by statute in the state in which the organization is located as an estate in real property consisting of an undivided interest in common in a portion of a parcel of real property together with separate interest in space in a residential, industrial, or commercial building on such real property, such as an apartment, office, or store. The statute provides that the owner of a condominium unit individually owns the interior surfaces of the perimeter walls, floors, ceilings, windows, and doors of his unit.

The statute further provides that the common areas of the condominium property are owned by the unit owners as tenants in common, in equal shares, one for each unit.

Section 501(c)(4) of the Internal Revenue Code provides for the exemption from Federal income tax of civic leagues or organizations not organized for profit but operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare.

Form 1937-A (Rev. 6-80) Correspondence Approval and Clearance

Department of the Treasury/Internal Revenue Service

Section 1.501(c)(14)-1(a)(2) of the regulations provides that an organization is operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare if it is primarily engaged in promoting in some way the common good and general welfare of the people of the community.

In Revenue Ruling 68-280, 1968-1 C.B. 152, the Service held that an organization formed to provide maintenance of exterior walls and roofs of homeowner members in a development was not exempt as a social welfare organization. In denying exemption under Internal Revenue Code section 501(c)(4), the Service viewed the organization as operating primarily and directly for the benefit of its individual members rather than for the community as a whole.

In Rev. Rul. 74-10, 1974-1 C.B. 130, an organization formed by the unit owners of a condominium housing project to provide for the management, maintenance, and care of the common areas of the project, as defined by state statute with membership assessments paid by unit owners does not qualify for exemption.

In Revenue Ruling 74-39, 1974-1 C.B. 131, provides that to qualify for exemption a homeowners' association must serve a "community" which bears a reasonable recognizable relationship to an area ordinarily identified as governmental. It must not conduct activities directed to the exterior maintenance of private residences, and the common areas it owns and maintains must be for the use and enjoyment of the general public.

By virtue of the essential nature and structure of a condominium system of ownership, the rights, duties, privileges, and immunities of the members of an association of unit owners in a condominium property derive from, and are established by, statutory and contractual provisions and are inextricably and compulsorily tied to the owner's acquisition and enjoyment of his property in the condominium. In addition, condominium ownership necessarily involves ownership in common by all condominium unit owners of a great many so-called common areas, the maintenance and care of which necessarily constitutes the provision of private benefits for the unit owners.

Since the organization's activities are for the private benefit of its members, it cannot be said to be operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare. Accordingly, you do not qualify for exemption from Federal income tax under section 501(c)(4) of the Code.

In accordance with this determination, you are required to file Federal income tax returns on Form 1120. Your attention is called to Code section 528, which provides certain procedures by which qualifying homeowners associations may elect to be treated as a tax exempt organization. The enclosed Publication 588 describes the requirements for exemption under Code section 528.
